IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our mother, Alberta C. Ferguson on her birthday, November 28, 1979.
"MOTHER DEAR"
Beautiful things in this life are
Manifold 'tis true.
We count the stars by
thousands.
The birds the flowers, too.
The sunsets and the dawnings,
Rare beauties far and near.
But all the wide world over.
There's just one
"Mother Dear".

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our wife and mother, Mrs. Edeth Ford Jordan, who departed this life two years ago today, November 25, 1977.
Two long years of deepest
sorrow,
Lonesome hours of grief and
pain,
A wound that never can be
healed,
Until that day we meet again.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our father, John Haskins, who departed this life November 23, 1958.
When loved ones go, silent tears,
It's hard to say good-bye.
And in our grief and sorrow,
We are tempted to ask why?
But they have found the peace
and joy
This world can never give.
And in God's heavenly home,
It's they not we, who truly live.
Children, LaVaughn, Carsue
And Jean

SS Questions and Answers

Q. My husband died last month. Can I cash the social security check that arrived this month, or am I supposed to return it?

A. No benefits are payable for the month of death. For example, if the beneficiary died in October, the check dated November 2, (which is payment for October) should be returned unless the check is made out jointly to a husband and wife. In that case, the survivor should ask at a social security office whether to cash the check.

Q. When my first child was born, I quit my job as a bookkeeper. Now that all the children are in school, I've decided to return to work. Were the social security credits I learned in my former job taken off my record when I stopped working?

A. No. Any social security credits you earn, regardless of when you earn them, remain on your social security record. Of course, if you stop working before you have enough credits, no benefits will be payable on your social security record. But, if you return to work, you can earn any additional credits you need to get benefits.

Q. My husband died several weeks ago. I know I'm supposedto file an application for social security survivors benefits, but I don't know what papers to take with me. Can you tell me what I'll need?

A. Some of the proofs you may need to apply for survivors benefits are your social security number and the deceased worker's number; proof of your age; proof of marriage; the children's birth certificates, if they are applying for benefits; and the deceased worker's income tax forms or returns for the year before death. Don't delay applying because you don't have all these proofs. The people at the social security office can suggest other proofs that can be used.

Q. My granddaughter has been living with me since her parents were killed in a boat accident 5 years ago. Can she get social security benefits when I retire in a few months?

A. A grandchild may be eligible for social security benefits on a grandparent's work record if the natural parents are dead or disabled and if the grandchild is living with and supported by the grandparent. For more information, contact any social security office.

Q. My husband has used up the 90 hospital days that Medicare pays for in a benefit period, but he had to stay in the hospital for several more weeks. Doesn't Medicare provide a certain number of extra days for cases like this?

A. Yes. Medicare hospital insurance includes an extra 60 hospital days that a person can use if he or she never needs to be in a hospital for more than 90 days in a benefit period. These extra days are called reserve days. But, reserve days are not renewable like the 90 hospital days in each benefit period. Once you use a reserve day, you never get it back.

Q. Up until the end of October, I didn't have any medical expenses for this year. Then, I had to make several office visits to my doctor and have some tests done at a laboratory. Isn't there a special Medicare rule that lets me count these expenses toward the $60 deductible for this year and next year, too?

A. The rule you're referring to is called the carryover rule. If you have covered medical expenses in the last 3 months of a year that can be counted toward your $60 medical insurance deductible for that year, they can also be counted toward your $60 deductible for the next year. This is true even if your total covered expenses for a year are less than $60. Any social security office can give you more information about the carryover rule.

Q. I recently had a bad fall and injured my back. Will Medicare pay for the services of a chiropractor?

A. Medicare medical insurance helps pay for only one kind of treatment furnished by a licensed and Medicare-certified chiropractor. The only treatment that can be covered is manual manipulation of the spine to correct a subluxation that can be demonstrated by X-ray. Medical insurance does not pay for any other diagnostic or therapeutic services, including X-rays, furnished by a chiropractor.

Q. I'll be 65 in a few months and plan to apply for Medicare. I know Medicare doesn't pay all medical expenses, though, and I've been wondering if I should buy additional health insurance. Can you offer any advice?

A. Many private insurance companies sell health insurance to supplement Medicare. But, before you buy a supplemental policy, carefully examine the benefits offered to make sure you don't buy a policy which is unnecessary or duplicates Medicare coverage. The Health Care Financing Administration puts out a pamphlet called Guide to health insurance for people with Medicare. It describes the kinds of private insurance available and gives useful information about buying supplemental insurance. You can get a free copy at any social security office.

Q. I've been told it takes a long time for SSI disability claims to be processed. I have very little cash and I'm afraid it will run out before my SSI payments start. Can I get some financial help while I'm waiting?

A. A claimant who is otherwise eligible and found presumptively disabled (or presumptively blind) can get payments for up to 3 months while it is being medically determined if he or she is disabled (or blind). These payments will not be considered an overpayment if it is finally determined that the claimant is not eligible. The people at the social security office can give you more information when you apply for SSI payments.

Q. My daughter, who is severely handicapped, attends vocational training at a local institution. I've heard that people in public institutions aren't eligible for SSI payments. Does this rule apply to my daughter?

A. In general, a person who is an inmate of a public institution is not eligible for SSI payments. However, if a person is a resident of a public institution primarily for approved educational or vocational training, he or she may be eligible for SSI. For more information, contact any social security office.

Q. My neighbor thinks I might be able to get SSI payments because I have very little income. The only assets I own are my furniture, household goods, and personal belongings. Would they count against me?

A. An individual may have resources (assets) worth up to $1,500 and be eligible for SSI. Not all resources are counted toward this $1,500 limit. Starting November 1, 1979 personal effects and household goods with a total equity value (actual value less money owed) of $2,000 or less are not counted. If the total equity value exceeds $2,000, the excess is counted toward the resource limit. (Prior to November 1, personal effects and household goods with a total market value of $1,500 or less did not count.) For more information, contact any social security office.

Q. My wife is 67 and I'm 68. The only income we have is the rent we get from a tenant who lives upstairs. If we're eligible for SSI, how much will our payment be?

A. The maximum Federal SSI payment for an eligible couple is $312.30 a month. The amount of your SSI check may be less, however, depending on how much other income you have, your living arrangements, and other circumstances that affect your financial needs. If you think you're eligible for SSI, you should apply as soon as possible. No payment can be made for months after an application is filed.
